PREMIERE PARTIE : LE VOCABULAIRE ANGLAIS

I. ENGLISH SPELLING AND PRONUNCIATION

Introduction :

L'orthographe anglaise n'indique pas la prononciation. La même lettre représente souvent des sons différents et le même son est aussi souvent représenté par des lettres, ou groupes de lettres différents. De plus, de nombreuses lettres ne se prononcent pas du tout.

Par exemple la lettre a est prononcée différemment dans chacun des mots suivants :

Cat [kæt], cart [kɑ:t], wash [wɒʃ], talk [tɔ:k] :

Came [keim], chocolate [ˌtʃɒkəl:t], an [ən]

Les lettres soulignées dans les mots qui suivent ne sont pas prononcées :

Cup board ['kʌbəd], raspberry [ra:zbri], knife [naɪf], climb [klaim], listen [lɪsn], daughter ['dɔ:tə]

L'alphabet phonétique :

L'alphabet phonétique permet de transcrire la prononciation. En plus des 26 lettres de l'alphabet ordinaire. Il dispose de symboles supplémentaires nécessaires à la transcription de tous les sons émis en langue anglaise.

Pour les voyelles, ces symboles sont :

1) [i:], 2) [i], 3) [e], 4) [æ], 5) [a:], 6) [o], 7) [ɔ :] 8) [u],

9) [u:], 10) [ʌ], 11) [ə:], 12) [ə],

Pour les consonnes, les symboles nouveaux sont :

1) [θ], 2) [ð], 3) [ʃ], 4) [tʃ], 5) [ʒ], 6) [dʒ], 7) [b],

Remarques importantes :

1- On ne sert jamais de majuscules en phonétique.

Exemples: London] 'lʌndən] , John Bull ['dʒɒn'bul]

2- Ne pas écrire la phonétique liée comme l'écriture cursive ordinaire, mais en séparant les symboles.

Exemples : green] gr

:n] , believe [bi'li:v]

3- La syllabe accentuée est indiquée en la faisant précéder d'un accent.

Exemples: answer ['a:nsə], tobacco [tə' bækou], afraid [ə' freid]

Il est essentiel d'étudier correctement et attentivement l'ensemble des symboles utilisés dans l'alphabet phonétique. Il y sera fait appel à chaque jour qu'une difficulté majeure ou spécifique surgira en matière de prononciation et d'orthographe.

1. Les voyelles anglaises :

Il existe en anglais deux voyelles [i] que nous représentons.

-par [i:] = voyelle longue comme dans le mot arabe في [fi:]

-par [i] = voyelle brève comme dans le mot arabe من [min]

Les symboles suivis de deux points indiquent des voyelles longues.

[i:] comme dans [si:t] = seat

En orthographe ordinaire, se son s'écrit fréquemment [ee] ou [e].

Exemples : see [si:], green [gri:n], feet [fi:t], tree [tri:], knee [ni:], be [bi:], cedar ['si:də], eve [i:v],

fourteen [fɔ:'ti:n]

Mais il s'écrit aussi [ea], [ie], [ei], et [i]

Exemples : tea [ti:], dream [dri:m], eat [i:t], meat [mi:t] field [fi:ld], believe [b'ili:v], ceiling ['si.lih], machine [ma'ji:n]

Exercice de lecture :

Cut [kʌt]	Cump [kʌmp]	Lung [lʌŋ]	numb [nʌm]
Gun [gʌn]	Sum [sʌm]	Mach [mʌtʃ]	money [mʌni]

[ə] comme dans forget [fə'get]

Cette voyelle ne s'emploie jamais dans une syllabe accentuée.

Exemples : banana [bə'na:nð], monotonons [mə'nɒtənəs], breakfast ['brekfast], policeman [pə'li:smən],

again [ə'gen]

Les lettres a e o u et , se prononcent fréquemment [ə] dans une syllabe non accentuée et tout particulièrement dans les préfixes et suffixes.

Exemples : about ['əbaut], answer ['a:nsə], forgive [f ə'gɪv], circus ['sə: kas]

Les lettres i; et y peuvent aussi se prononcer [ə] dans les mêmes conditions.

Les finales non accentuées er ar or , ou , ous , ure se prononcent [ə]. Il en est de même pour celles en

, on , an ion as etc....

Exemple : butcher ['butʃə], sugar ['ʃugə], doctor ['dɒktə] neighbor ['neɪbə], littérature ['lɪtrɪtʃə], enormous ['ɪnɔ:məs], permission [pə'mɪʃən], religion [ri'lɪdʒən], learn [læ:n]	shirt [ʃə:t]	firm [fə:m]	nerve [nə:v]

sir [sə:]	surf [sə:f]	worm [wə:m]	verse [və:s]

Le son de voyelle [a] ne s'emploie pas seul en anglais et ne sert qu'à former les deux diphtongues [ai] et [au]

Il en est de même pour le son de voyelle [o] qui entre seulement dans la composition de la diphtongue [ou], et du son [ε] dans la diphtongue [εð]

2. Les diphtongues anglaises :

Un diphtongue est un double son de voyelle. Les deux sons de voyelles ne sont pas juxtaposés, mais on glisse du 1^{er} au 2^{ème} d'une manière continue.

Il existe en anglais neuf (09) diphtongues, chacune représenté en phonétique par les deux symboles des voyelles qui les composent. Ce sont :

ai], [au], [ei] , [ou], [ɔi], [ia], [εð], [ua], et [ɔð]

Sur ces 9 diphtongues [ei] , [ou], [ɔi] et [ɔu] sont celles qui se rencontrent le plus fréquemment en anglais.

[ɔi] comme dans fly [flɔi] :

Ce son de diphtongue est presque toujours représenté par les lettres [i], on [y], en orthographes ordinaire et quelques fois par [ie] et [ei] .

Exemples : write [rait] , china ['tʃaɪnə], guide [gaɪd] night [nait] sky [skai], spy [spai]

------------	---------------	---------------	---------------	------------------	---------------	----------------	-----------------

[uə] comme dans poor [puə]

Cette diphtongue, pas fréquente en anglais, s'écrit le plus souvent [oor] et [ure]

Exemples: endure [in'djuə] , jury ['dʒuəri] , ensure [in'juə] cure [kjuə] , fewer [fjuə] , moor [muə]

[ɔə] comme dans floor [flɔə]

Cette diphtongue n'est pas indispensable car elle peut être remplacée par le son de voyelle [ɔ:] : elle est souvent représentée par les lettres [oar] ou [ore]

Exemple : board [bɔəd] , roar [rɔə] , store [stɔə] , car [kɔə] ,
Shore [ʃɔə] , snore [snɔə] , more [mɔə] , soar [sɔə]

Exercice sur [ɔ:] et [ɒə] :

sauce [sɔ:s]	drawn [drɔ:] drawer	flaw [flɔ:] floor	daw [dɔ:]
source [sɔəs]	[drɔɒ]	[flɒə]	door [dɔə]

Les mots du bas peuvent se prononcer comme ceux du haut (source [sɔ:] par exemple). Mais la réciproque n'est pas vraie et les mots du haut ne peuvent pas se prononcer avec [ɒə].

3. Les triptongues :

Une triptongue est un triple son de voyelles prononcées dans une seule émission de voix. Les triptongues anglaises s'obtiennent en ajoutant [ə] à une diphtongue.

Les principales triptongues sont [aiə] et [auə]. Il existe également les triptongues [eiə], [ɔiə], et [ouə], mais elles se rencontrent beaucoup moins fréquemment que les deux précédents.

[aiə] comme dans tire [

Elle s'écrit de nombreuses manières mais le plus souvent [ia] ou [ire].

Exemples : dial [daiəl], diamond ['daiəmand], enquire [in'kwaɪə], désire [diz'aɪə], iron [arən],

Liar [laɪə]

[auə] comme dans flower [flauə]

Cette triptongue est représentée le plus souvent par [owe] ou [ou]

Exemple : power [pawə], flour [flauə], tower [tauə].

[eiə], [ouə] et [ɔiə]

pig [pig] , pain [peɪn] , pen [pe:n] , pan [pæn] , pet [pet] , put [put] , paint [peɪnt] .

[b] comme dans bed [bed]:

La lettre [b] se prononce habituellement [b]

Exemples : bread [bred] , blind [blaɪnd] , boat [bout] , baby ['beɪbi]

Cette lettre [b] est cependant muette dans les mots se terminant en [mbb] et dans leurs dérivés, ainsi que devant [t] dans certains mots.

Exemples: lamb [læm] , climb [klaim] , thumb [θʌm] plumber['plʌmə] , bebt[det] , doubt [daʊt] , subtle [sʌtl] .

Exercice de lecture :

bag [bæɡ]	bus [bʌs]	black [blæk]	bomb [bɒm]	bake [beɪk]	beam [bi:m]
back [bæk]			book [buk]	bone [baʊn]	bean [bi:n]

[t] comme dans ten [ten]

La lettre [t] se prononce ordinairement [t]

Exemples : tap [tæp] , ten [ten] , town [taʊn] , tart [ta:t]

Le son [t] est exceptionnellement représenté par [th] , dans certains mots et aussi par [ed] après certains consonnes sourdes. Thames [temz] , thomas [tɒməs] , anthony ['ætəni]

La lettre [t] est muette dans les finales en [stle] et [sten]

Exemples : castle [ka:sl], fasten ['fa:sn], listen [lisn], often [ɔ:fn]

Exercice de lecture: tip [tip], tea [ti:], time [taim], tie [tai] twing [twig], top [tɒp], too [tu:], tyre [taɪə], tide [taɪd], tub [tʌb],

[d] comme dans day [dei]

La lettre [d] se prononce [d]

Exemples: desk [desk], dog [dɒg], do [du]

Cette lettre est muette dans certains mots.

Exemples: handsome [hænsəm], grandfather [grænfa:ðə],

Wednesday ['wenzdi]

Prononciation du [ed] du prétérit et du participe passé

Le [ed] prétérit et du participe passé se prononce [id] après [t] et un [d].

Exemples : divides [di'vaɪdɪd], visited ['vɪzɪtɪd], ended ['endɪd],

Autrement , ce ed se prononce toujours [t] ou [d], à savoir :

- [t] après une consonne sourde, c'est-à-dire après (p), (k), (f), (o) (s) ou (h)
- [d] dans tous les autres cas.

Exemples : brushed [brʌʃt], picked [pɪkt], pressed [prest]

phoned [fənd], loved [lʌvd], hanged [hæŋgd]

Exercice de lecture sur son (d) :

dark [da:k] deaf [def]	deep [di:p] dove [dʌv]	die [daɪ] dig [dɪg]	dust [dʌst] daddy ['dædi]
-------------------------------	-------------------------------	----------------------------	----------------------------------

[k] comme dans cat [kæt] :

Because of + verb

2. Expressing results, consequences:

- The pupils didn't work hard last year, as a result, many of them failed in the baccalaureate exam.
- It was very hot during the summer / so / therefore, a lot of forests burnt.

As a result, So, Therefore

III. ACTIVE AND PASSIVE FORMS:

A sentence can be either in the active voice or in the passive voice. It is active when we want to focus on the doer of the action and passive when we want to focus on the action by the doer.

1. Active form:

When the subject of a sentence is more important and we want to focus on it, the verb is in the active form. And the sentence is said to be in the active form.

Examples:

- The employments finished their work.
- Fares writes a poem.

Here we want to explain that it is Fares who wrote the poem. Fares is the doer of the action.

2-Passive form:

a. Use:

We only use the passive when we are interested in the object or when we do not know who caused the action.

Example: Appointments are required in such cases.

We can only form a passive sentence from an active sentence when there is an object in the active sentence.

b. Form:

To be + past participle

How to form a passive sentence when an active sentence is given:

- object of the "active" sentence becomes subject in the "passive" sentence;
- subject of the "active" sentence becomes "object" in the "passive" sentence" (or is left out).

Active:	Peter	builds	a house.

Passive:	A house	Is built	by Peter.

Examples:

Active	Peter	builds	a house.	Simple Present
Passive:	A house	Is built	by Peter.

Active:	Peter	built	a house.	Simple Past
Passive:	A house	Was built	by Peter.

Active:	Peter	has built	a house.	Present Perfect
Passive:	A house	has been built	by Peter.

Active:	Peter	Will build	a house.	will-future
Passive:	A house	Will be built	by Peter.

Active:	Peter	Canbuild	a house.	Modals
Passive:	A house	Canbebuilt	by Peter.

- Here you will find some examples of how to form the passive depending on the tense.

Tense	Active	Passive
Simple present	Peter builds a house	A house is built by Peter.
Simple past	Peter built a house.	A house was built by Peter
Present perfect	Peter has built a house.	A house has been built by Peter.
Past perfect	Peter had built a house.	A house had been built by Peter.
Will future	Peter will build a house.	A house will be built by Peter.
Going to- future	Peter is going to build a house in summer.	A house is going to be built in summer by Peter.

c. Passive sentences with by :

We are normally not interested in the "doer" of an action in a passive sentence. When we want to mention the "doer", we use the preposition by. The whole phrase is called by-agent in English.

Active sentence	Passive sentence
Mr Brown built the house	The house was built by Mr Brown.

When we do not know, who was the "doer" of the action, we use someone or some body in the active sentence. We leave out these words in the passive sentence.

Active sentence	Passive sentence
Someone stole my bike.	My bike was stolen .

The table below shows how the verb is changed into its passive form in different tenses.

Tense	Active form	Passive form
The present simple	Ayoub finishes the work.	The work is finished by Ayoub.
The present continuous	Ayoub is finishing the work.	The work is being finished by Ayoub.
The present perfect	Ayoub has finished the work.	The work has finished by Ayoub.
	Ayoub finished the work.	The work was finished by

The past simple		Ayoub.
The past continuous	Ayoub was finishing the work.	The work was being finished by Ayoub.
The past perfect	Ayoub had finished the work.	The work had been finished by Ayoub.
The future simple	Ayoub will finish the work.	The work will finished by Ayoub.
Modals + verb	Ayoub can finish the work.	The work can be finished by Ayoub.
	Ayoub would finish the work.	The work would be finished by Ayoub.

V. SENTENCE CONSTRUCTION:

1. Complete sentence:

The English sentence is made up of one more clause.

A clause is a group of words containing a verb and its subject.

Main clause: (or independent clause) is a clause that can stand alone as a sentence.

Example:

–The driver rested and had a drink.

–The donkey chewed the tender grass while the driver rested.

In this sentence, we have:

A main clause: "The donkeygrass"

A subordinate clause: "while the driver rested "

Subordinate clause (or dependent clause): Is a clause that cannot stand-alone.

Example :

–I'll speak to her when she comes.

–After graduating from university, he became a teacher in French.

–I'll read his book as soon as I can.

When a sentence consists only of one main clause, it is called simple sentence.

Example: The policeman showed the tourist the Way to the hotel.

2. The compound sentence:

A compound sentence is a sentence made up of two or more main clauses.

The two clauses are joined by:

–A comma + a coordinating conjunction: and, but, or, etc...

–A semicolon ";".

AND: Shows addition;

Example: John moved to London, and Jane moved to Liverpool

BUT and YET: show contrast;

Example:

–John moved away, but Jane stayed in town.

–He has saved money, all year, yet he does not –Have enough for his holidays.

OR and NOR: Show contrast or alternation;

Example:

–Are you going at the cinema, or will you stay home?

–I do not know writing Arabic, nor I speak it very well.

FOR: Shows reason;

Example: This student failed for he was very ill this year.

Correlatives conjunctions: They are used to join two sentences patterns or two parallels sentences elements of any kind.

Eitheror.....

Neither.....nor.....

Both.....and.....

Not onlybut also.....

Example:

–Either you will confess, or I will complain.

–Neither he is honest, nor he is trustworthy.

–Not only he is honest, but he is also trustworthy.

a. Conjunctives Adverbs (or connectors): They are used to connect basic sentence patterns to make compound sentences.

Example: I wanted to buy this house, however it was already sold.

The principal connectors are:

- Addition : moreover, also, besides, furthermore, likewise.
- Contrast: However, nevertheless, still, (on the contrary, on the other hand);
- Result: Therefore, hence, thus, consequently ... (as a result);
- Alternative: Otherwise;
- Time : Then, meanwhile, afterword (in the meantime, so far, since then, after, that, before that, until then) accordingly.

b. Compound connectors:

Example:

- It is too late to finish work; in fact, it is time to go home.
- He is not a stupid boy; on the contrary, he is quite intelligent.
- They may go to the concert, on the other hand; they may decide to attend a lecture.

Note: The punctuation in these different kinds of compound sentences.

In short main clauses the comma is frequently omitted before “AND” and “OR”, but it is usually needed with BUT and FOR.

An adverb clause can introduced by:

• Subordinating conjunctions: When - until - after - before - while - since - once til - although - though - whereas - (even though) - If - whether - unless - because - as - since - whatever - wherever.

Example: Since we live near the sea, we can often go swimming.

• Compound subordinating conjunctions: As soon as, as far as, as long as, so that, in order that, such that, except that, for all that, so as to, in spite of the fact that, as if, in case, even if, now that, provided that, supposing that, given that, granted that.... .

Example: He left early in case he would miss the train.

• Correlative subordinating conjunction: Ifthen/ as.....so/ such.....as / no sooner ...that such.....that.

The complex sentence is a sentence made up of one main closed and a subordinated clause.

A subordinate clause is a clause which begins with a subordinate conjunction.

It can never stand alone, but must be attached to a main clause:

Example: I have not seen John since he left home.

The subordinate clauses are classified according to their function in the sentence.

They are three kinds of subordinate clauses:

• Adjective clause:(or relative clauses)

- It modifies the subject, or some other noun or pronoun;
- It is usually introduced by one of the relative pronouns: which, who, that.

Example:

- Mr Jones, who is sick, will not go out.
- We arrived at the hotel, which we find very comfortable.
- I don't like people who drive fast cars.

• Noun clause: It is used generally as the subject the object or the complement of the verb.

Example:

- Whether we need it is a different matter (subject).
- I don't know whether we need it (object).

There are six main types of noun clauses:

- The clauses:

Example: I told him that she was wrong.

- Interrogative clauses:

Example: I can't imagine what made him do a thing like that

- Relative noun clauses:

Example:

- Whoever told you that was lying.
- Anyone who.
- The person who.

- To infinitive noun clause:

Example: His ambition is to be a pilot.

- Ing noun clause:

Example:

- He likes playing football.
- Telling lies is wrong.

- Adverb clause:

- It modifies verbs, and most often tells us when or why etc.
- It can come either before of the main clause.

Example: When he expressed desire to leave, every one expressed regret.
Everyone expressed regret when he decided to leave (no comma).

PRESENT	HAVE HAS	HAVE NOT HAS NOT	HAVEN'T HASN'T
PAST	HAD	HAD NOT	HADN'T
FUTURE	WILL HAVE	WILL NOT HAVE	WON'T HAVE

II. THE PRESENT SIMPLE:

Form: This tense is formed by using the infinitive of the verb (without «to»).

Remember the « s » after « he », « she », « it » or a singular noun or pronoun.

Use: This tense is used when you want to talk about what people do all the time or normally and describe truths.

Example: We employ fifty staff.

1. Interrogative form:

It is formed with does + infinitive of the verb in the 3 rd person singular.

(He / she/ It) and do + infinitive of the verb for the rest.

Example: Do I speak English well?
Do you speak English well?

Does he speak English well?
Does she speak English well?
Does it speak English well?

Do we speak English well?
Do you speak English well?
Do they speak English well?

2. Negative form:

It is formed with does not + infinitive of the verb in the 3 rd person singular.

(He/She/It): and do not + infinitive of the verb for the rest.

Example:

I do not speak German.

You do not speak German

He	does	not	Speak German.
She	does	not	Speak German.
It	does	not	Speak German.

We do not Speak German.
You do not Speak German.
They do not Speak German.

III. THE PRESENT CONTINUOUS:

Form: This tense is formed by using « am » « are », « is » with the «ing» form of the verb (e.g. «making»).

Use: This tense is used to talk about what people are doing now.

Example: The current rises in manufacturing costs are causing a reduction in our profit margins.

1. Interrogative form:

It is formed with:

To be + subject + verb + ing

Example:

Am I saying it clearly?
Are you listening to me?
Is he paying attention?
Is she typing a letter?
Is it sleeping?
Are we working or playing?
Are you doing your home work?
Are they eating their breakfast?

2. Negative form:

It is formed with:

Subject + to be + not + verb +

Example:

I am not joking; I am speaking seriously.
You are not doing it well; repeat please.
He is not eating his soup; he is not hungry
She is not working today; she is sick
It is not raining; you can go out
We are not complaining: We are just telling you
You are not reading well; you have a lot to learn.
They are not watching T.V; they are sleeping.

PRACTICE THE PRESENT SIMPLE/THE PRESENT CONTINUOUS:

EXERCISE N° 01: Put the verbs in brackets into the correct present tense.

- Ann sees Paul putting on his coat and says: where you (go), Paul?

- Paul: I (go) to buy some cigarettes. You (want) an evening paper?

- Ann: No, thanks. You are always buying cigarettes.

Paul, how many you (smoke) a day?

V. THE PAST SIMPLE

1. "To be" in the past simple:

The form: To be in the past simple has two forms:

"Was" is used with (I, he, she and it)

"Were" is used with (we, you and they)

–"You" is both singular and plural.

Examples:

–I was young in 1980.

–They were absent yesterday.

–She was born ten years ago.

The underlined words are called time expressions that refer to the past.

The interrogatives, the negatives and the positives:

–He was born in 1970.

The interrogative form: was he born in 1970?

The negative form: no, he was not born in 1970/no, he wasn't.

The positive form: yes, he was.

2. “To have” in the past simple:

The form: To have in the past simple has one form(had)with all the personal pronouns.

Examples:

–I had a big house in 2000.

–She had a beautiful car two years ago.

–They had a permanent job.

The interrogatives, the negatives and the positives:

–He had a red car in 1999.

The interrogative form: did he have a red car in 1999?

The negative form: no, he did not have a red car in 1999/no, he didn't.

The positive form: yes, he did.

3. Regular and irregular verbs:

We use past simple to express a finished action.

Look to the following examples:

He moved to Annaba in 1990.

They invited their friends yesterday.

She played until she was tired.

The verbs in bold are regular
So as you see it we add
“Ed” to the verb.

You wrote a good paragraph.

I became famous many years ago.

Sarah ate an apple.

The underlined verbs are
Irregular and they must be Learned by heart.

NOTE:

- A verb ending with “y” and preceded by a consonant turns into an “I”

Eg: study → studied.

- When a cvc verb or a verb ending with a “cvc” is put in the past, the last consonant is doubled.

Eg: hop → hopped.

VI. THE PAST CONTINUOUS :

The use:

1-Past continuous is used to describe an action that was on progress at a specific time in the past.

Example:

- What were you doing at 3.00 pm?
- I was watching TV.

The form: “To be” in the past simple (was/were) +the stem with “ing”

Note:

Stative verbs are not usually used in the continuous.

Example:

- We say I had a headache last night and not I was having a headache last night.

2- We use the past simple with the past continuous when a short action interrupts a longer action in the past. We use the past simple for the interrupting action.

Example:

- They were driving too fast when they crashed.

Note:

Use when to introduce the past simple action or use while to introduce the past continuous action.

Example:

- He was speeding when the light turned red.
- While he was speeding, the light turned red.

Note:

The time clause (the part of the sentence beginning with when or while) can come at the beginning or at the end of the sentence. The meaning is the same. You have to use a comma after the time clause when it comes at the beginning of the sentence.

Example 1:

- When you called, I was leaving.
- I was leaving when you called.

Example 2:

- While he was driving, he was talking.
- He was talking while he was driving

3- We use the past continuous with while to talk about two actions in progress at the same time in the past. We use the past continuous in both clauses.

Example:

- Sami was talking on the phone while he was driving.

II.COMPREHENSION AND TRANSLATION OF COMMERCIAL TEXTS:

Globalization is one of the major factors driving business forward. Therefore, businessmen are working to open borders to communicate with customers from all over the world and to face many challenges due to the different international languages. If you are an entrepreneur or a business owner, you must learn to overcome these barriers. In this regard, you will find that translation agencies specializing in commercial affairs represent your greatest help.

1. What is commercial translation?

In the commercial field, translation refers to the translation of documents, commercial papers and promotional materials. It includes market studies, commercial reports, competition studies, assignment descriptions, various brochures, commercial packaging, magazines, trade publications, commercial plans, leaflets, and much more.

If you want to expand your business and transfer it to a new audience, you must be in a position to speak to them in their language. This is the available and proven method of building trust between people. From the standpoint of building trust, you will be able to participate in successful business deals. Here, the importance of an experienced commercial translator who can lend you a hand in this journey appears.

You must first submit the commercial documents that you use in selling products and marketing to the target party. On top of these things, you need to ensure that the content in these documents is compelling to the reader at all times. Otherwise, these documents will not provide any positive results for you on the part of the target audience.

The writing style you use is completely different from the writing style used in the financial document. You will need to make sure that you keep this pattern when translating commercial documents from one language to another. Here, the expert translator role in commercial translation appears to be used in the translation you want. This expert will have the experience and expertise to present the sales and marketing of the products. It is preferred that the translator has previous experience in the field of marketing, sales and advertising. In this case, it can add more value to the documents you translate.

2.Why should you hire an expert in the field of commercial translation?

Translating commercial documents is an issue that presents many challenges. Therefore, no one can accurately perform the translation in this field. Likewise, you are not required to use any tools from the Internet to follow this pattern of translation.

Imagine what would happen when you translate a text over the Internet, where you will eventually find yourself achieving an understanding that differs greatly from what is contained in the translated text. This can have a big and substantial impact on the type of translation you provide. In fact, you will not in any way accept to offend the quality of the translation you provide, which will have the greatest negative impact on the reliability of this translation. In order to make sure that this does not happen, you need someone who can provide you with the support you need in establishing a good reputation in the field of commercial document translation.

The expressions you use contribute a lot to the success you can have in translating business documents. However, there are fundamental differences between the expressions used in different languages. In the event that these expressions are not correctly conveyed in translating the text into the target language, this will lead to incorrect information being transmitted to the target language readers. This is what it cannot bear in this regard.

You must always make sure that you provide the correct and powerful translation to your readers at all times. At the same time, it is necessary for this translated text to convey cultural and linguistic origins. Then the positive results can be reaped through the materials to be marketed.

If you can use a service provider for commercial marketing, you do not need to be anxious about the results you achieve. This leads to you will resort to a citizen who is fluent in the target language to achieve the results you are looking for. It is very important for such a person to speak the target language to also have marketing background in this field. And inevitably, you will find yourself in a position to honestly and correctly convey the marketing message to the target language. III. STUDY OF TEXTS OF AN ECONOMIC AND COMMERCIAL NATURE:

1. What's trade and aid?

1.1. Definition of trade: Trade is an exchange of resources between countries.

1.2. Definition of aid: Aid is a transfer of resources from one country to another. Both trade and aid make resources available to developing countries they are not alternatives, both are necessary.

It is the essence of the development process that it should deal with insufficiencies. Developing countries can't generate enough savings to finance their investment programs. This being so, they can either cut back these programs and develop even more slowly, or go in for deficit finance which means printing more money to make up the amount required. This inevitably raises the home price level and leads to balance of payments deficits. If the country has no reserves, available it will have to damp down activity (deflate) in the home economy.

In this situation, aid is the best form of help as it makes good the shortage of saving for the investment program. Also as a transfer or foreign exchange it helps to correct the balance of payment deficit.

A different situation arises where a developing country is able to generate a sufficiently high rate of domestic saving, but is short of foreign exchange with which to pay for imported machinery and equipment.

If exports can't be increased or imports cut down the country is said to have a foreign exchange gap or trade gap.

In this, case it is the shortage of foreign exchange, not of domestic resources, that is the limiting factor. Any measures to improve the trading position and bring in foreign exchange will help an improvement in the terms of trade relationship of import prices, would raise the ability to purchase imports.

2. Terms of trade: Export prices /Import prices:

Why doesn't a country with trade gap secure aid and spend the money on imports of foreign equipment? The answer is that it may do this and be very pleased with itself in the short run. However, the important part of the problem is to raise exports. This is what an improvement in the terms of trade does.

New industries without export opportunities to match have to depend on the home market which is not big enough to give all the cost- advantages of long production runs. Instead of being better off with their own shiny new factories, the people are soon grumbling that the same good used to be much cheaper when they were imported.

In short neither trade nor aid supplies the complete answer to the development problem. Remember that the term developing countries, covers a wide variety of problems requiring different solutions.

Remember that in economics, nothing is both simple and generally true at the same time. Industrialised countries that provide aid on generous scale to the developing countries must be prepared to face competition from the new industries that they have helped to create.

Example of commercial text:

The sale and the purchase of the goods

A contract is a verbal or written agreement by which the seller transfers or agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a money consideration called the price. When the goods are to be delivered at once to the buyer the contract is called a sale. When the goods are to be delivered at a later date the contract is called "an agreement to sell".

The goods may be bought or sold for cash (the payment is made at once); on credit (the entire amount due is paid by specified date after delivery); on extended credit (the buyer obtains the immediate use of the goods and pays for them in installments, the amount of which includes interest on the debt).

The payment is deferred by different forms:

- Hire-purchase, under which the ownership of the goods remains with the seller until all installments have been paid by the buyer. If the later fails to pay the installments, the seller may recover his merchandise.
- Credit sale, by which the buyer becomes the owner of the goods when he pays the first installment. If the buyer does not make his payments, he may be sued by the seller.

The principal documents used in the buying and selling of goods are: the order, the delivery note, the invoice, the debit note, the credit note, the account sales and account purchase, the statement of account, and the receipt.

3. Structure of a business letter:

The form of a business letter is largely a matter of custom and convenience. It should show clearly who wrote it, when it was written, to whom it was written. A business letter usually consists of the following six parts: (1) The heading and date. (2) The inside address. (3) The salutation. (4) The body of the letter. (5) The complementary close, and (6) The signature.

1. The heading is usually printed or engraved on the firm's note paper. It indicates the style, the postal, telegraphic and cable address of the firm, as well as the telephone number and the code used. The date should be written on the right-hand side of the letter. A reference number, to be quoted in the correspondent's reply, will help the filling clerk to trace the sender.

2. The inside address, which is placed on the left-hand side, at the head of the letter, is the address of the person written to and should correspond with the address on the envelope. A courtesy title should always be placed before or after a personal name. You should write: Mr. F.W Jones to a retail tradesman, Arthur brown, ex, to a private gentleman; Mrs. Williams, to a married lady, and Masers. Smith & Co to a commercial firm.

Do not use any title when there is no person's name in the address: Example: "the public utility co, LTD, Oxford".

3. The salutation, a matter of courtesy, is practically limited to the following five forms: Dear Sirs, Dear Madam, Dear Sir, Gentleman, and Mesdames.

4. The body of the letter contains the information to be communicated. Here clearness of meaning is absolutely necessary. Conciseness and courtesy are highly advisable. Never should clarity be sacrificed to brevity. Again, brevity should not be encouraged at the expense of courtesy. Separate aspects of the same subject should be dealt with in separate paragraphs; entirely different matters are better dealt with in separate letters.

Perfect punctuation is essential in order that the meaning of the letter may be easily grasped. Hackneyed phrases (such as "your favour" and are obliged" should be avoided.

5. The complementary close of an English business letter consists of one of the following forms: yours truly, or "your faithfully", "Respectfully yours" is sometimes used when writing to a superior "cordially Yours" is becoming more and more frequent as a complementary close to ordinary American business letters.

6. The signature authenticates and fixes the responsibility for the letter. Persons whose signature is not very legible often have the name typed underneath. An agent who has been entrusted with a power of attorney is said to sign "per procuration" or "by proxy"

Messrs. BRETT and Sons BIRMINGHAM

London

18th April 20...

Gentleman,

We duly received your letter of 15th APRIL and we are favorably impressed with the proposals you make us.

We have already been with several firms, but at present have come to no decision in the matter. However, if terms could be arranged, we think you would be just the people we should like to represent us.

We believe you have good connections throughout the trade and it seems to us a favorable opportunity to develop further the business which we have been doing for some years past, among the class of buyers you mention.

Of course the whole matter depends upon the question of the amount of commission you would require on orders obtained and executed, and as your Junior Partner intends visiting Birmingham in a fortnight's time, we would prefer to discuss the various points with him personally, instead of stating general terms by post, which would probably have to be modified.

Therefore, we shall await his visit.

Yours faithfully.

Soliciting a post as Junior Clerk

Messrs Thomas Jones & Sons LTD
Cotton Merchants,
Portland Street
MANCHESTER
28, February 200...

73, Howard road
Manchester

Dear Sir,

I wish to apply for the post of Junior Clerk, advertised in the "MANCHESTER EXAMINER" of 26th February.

I'm 17 years old.

For the last five years, I have been attending the Washington comprehensive school, where I'm now in the top class. My school reports show that I have always been in the first five students in my class. My best subjects are English and arithmetic.

The headmaster of the Washington comprehensive school will be pleased to answer any questions regarding my character and ability.

If my application is successful, I'm prepared to work hard to justify my appointment. I'm also prepared to attend evening classes in order to acquire a knowledge of commercial subjects.

Your respectfully
WILLAM CROWTHER
